

AMERICAN CRAFT WEEK
October 1-10, 2010
“A spotlight on hand-made in America”
A nationwide celebration.

American Craft Week is a project of the Craft Retailers and Artists for Tomorrow trade association (CRAFT), in partnership with Craft in America, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of craft and also the creators of the PBS series about craft. You can learn more about CRAFT at www.craftonline.org.

Organizers are asking makers, sellers, curators, instructors, collectors, guilds and others involved in craft to present community events, such as studio tours, art walks, fairs and exhibitions in early October. The idea is a grassroots movement, and the celebration of hand-made craft and its impact on our nation’s cultural heritage, and needs your enthusiasm and participation in local activities. The best place to get an overview of the event is www.AmericanCraftWeek.com.
